Chief Central and Eastern Europe video game event opens in Cracow od 21-22 May.

Video game market is a sector developing exceedingly fast. In 2013, it produced revenue twice that of the film industry. All over the world, there are approximately 1,7 billion people playing video games, and the increasing variety of game types, lets everyone feel a gamer. Cracow is a very special place in Polish game dev. It is here that the Digital Dragons conference, one of the largest B2B games sector events in this part of Europe develops. In 2014, the event was visited by over 800 creators, investors, and media representatives. Tjis marks nearly trebling of the numbers from 2012. The role of Digital Dragons is to build a space for exchange of information, making contacts, and promoting video games both for Polish developers and for numerous foreign guests. Organised by the Krakow Technology Park (KTP), the event is held in the exceptional confines of the Stara Zajezdnia - Old Tram Depot and the Museum of Municipal Engineering in Krakow. This year`s event is the fourth in the FEstival`s history.
